AUTO CRASH VICTIM VERGE LIFE AND DEATH

Matthew Mulcahy, 42, of DuPage crossing has been hovering between life and death since he received crushing injuries in a truck-auto collision last Friday morning at 4:30 o'clock in front of the Charles Less place at the junction of Wolf Road and route 7 about two miles north of Mokena, in which Henry Zeisner, 47, of Lockport and Al Willis, 40, of Channahon, were killed.

The injured man was at first removed to the Oak Forest hospital and on Saturday was removed to St. Joseph hospital, Joliet.

Police held the truck driver John F. Wynne, 32 years old of Chicago. The driver escaped injury. A shirt was hanging in the cab window on the driver's side and the wind shield was so dirty that one could hardly see thru it.

The wrecked car and truck were towed to the Cooper & Hostet garage in Mokena. Later the truck was removed to Chicago.

The general opinion in this section is that the scene of the accident and the intersection of Wolf and 159th Street should be better protected either by more adequate stop signs or else electric stop and go signs. Both intersections are extremely dangerous and have been the scene of a number serious and fatal accidents.

Will Broadcast Lutheran Hour

Dr. Walter Arthur Maeir, Ph. D., professor of Hebrew and Old Testament interpretation at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, who resumes his Lutheran Hour broadcasts Sunday, October 24 at 3:30 p. m., Central Standard Time, over a coast to coast network including 46 stations of the Mutual Broadcasting System. Turn to page 4 for another article on this broadcast.

RENTAL INSTRUMENTS. WILL BE MADE AVAILABLE FOR THE MOKENA SCHOOL BAND.

With the intention of rebuilding the school band from the ground up, Bandmaster H. A. Strom has announced that negotiations are under way to establish a rental system on instruments for Mokena children this fall.

This is the logical school year for children to begin on band instruments. The new group will be started immediately. Every child joining during the first month will have an opportunity of winning a regular chair in the new band.

The bandmaster further stated that complete details of the proposed rental system would be made public as soon as the complete arrangement is made.

In order to find out who can readily learn to play an instrument a rhythm and pitch test is being given to the students of the school to determine whether or not the children have talent for music.

Further details of the rental plan, and the music test will be made public later.

Frankfort Fire Truck Committees Are Appointed

Last Friday evening a meeting was held at Frankfort relative to purchasing a new fire truck and to extend fire protection to the rural districts if the people residing out of the corporate limits of Frankfort would be willing to contribute towards the cost of the new equipment. The rural districts were quite well represented and were agreeable to help carry part of the cost. A committee consisting of Joseph McBlashen, Arthur Geuther and Geo. Brandau was appointed to have charge of the rural interests.

A committee will go to Chicago Heights, Blue Island and Chicago a week from Monday to look over fire fighting equipment and will recommend what would serve the community to best advantage following which a subscription drive will be launched to raise the needed funds. It is said the new equipment may cost between $6000 and $8000.

The old equipment was purchased in 1928 at a cost of $2100.

Drug Store To Open In Tinley

Announcement has been made to the effect that Mr. A. Edna Harmeyer And Henry Brinkman Marry

Miss Edna Harmeyer, daughter of Mr. Edw. Harmeyer of Blue Island, former Oak Forest girl, was united in marriage with Mr. Henry Brinkman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brinkman of 151st and Le Clair Ave. Midlothian last Saturday in the home of the groom's parents. Rev. A. Klein of Oak Forest was the officiating clergy.

The bride wore a white satin gown with a veil of tulle and carried a bouquet of lilies. Her two sisters attended her. Mrs. Julius Przybylo was matron of honor. She wore blue satin and her bouquet was of red roses. Miss Agnes Harmeyer was the bride's maid and her gown was of peach satin and carried pink roses.

The groom was attended by Louis Brinkman.

The home was beautifully decorated with gladioli and roses. Thirty-four guests were seated at dinner, after which there was music and dancing. Coffee and cake was served at midnight after which the guests departed extending the usual well wishes for the bridal couple and declaring themselves as having had a very happy evening.

Many lovely gifts were received by the bridal couple.

Those present were: Rev. Mr. Klein of Oak Forest; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brinkman and family; Mr. and Mrs. J. Parsons and family; Miss Jean Clancy; Mr. and Mrs. C. Brinkman and family all of Arlington Heights; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brinkman; Mr. Edw. Harmeyer; Mrs. W. Simpson of Roseland; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Przybylo; Miss Agnes Harmeyer of Blue Island; Mr. and Mrs. John Schnell of Austin; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schnell of Glenn View; Fred Miller and daughter Alice of Chicago; Mrs. Panell of Oak Forest; Mrs. Boenckel, Blue Island.

The groom was a former Mokena boy. He was six years old when his parents moved to Maple Farm at Midlothian.

Over 5000 Attend "Days of 49" At Tinley Saturday and Sunday

Time was rolled back last Saturday and Sunday and one could almost fancy being in the days of '49 were re-enacted at Tinley Park. Hundreds of people poured into town in the early part of the evening and kept coming and going until the wee small hours of the morning.

The big entertainment opened with an Indian campfire in the street in front of Saenger hall. Indians with their feather head dresses and other colorful trappings huddled about the campfire and soon the old time stage coach appeared and suddenly a group of masked road agents or hold up men appeared on horse back and held up the coach. They succeeded in getting the strong box while the passengers and drivers were reaching for the sky.

Shortly after their departure the sheriff and his posse suddenly appeared on horse back in a cloud of dust and took up the trail of the bad men. Cow boys and cow girls were on hand and one of the cow boys lassoed an Indian off a pony. The covered wagon also made the rounds.

Following this free show the doors of Saenger hall were thrown open and in brief time the big hall was filled. The interior of the hall reminded one of the pictures of frontier days with various kinds of gambling going on full blast and with Spanish senoritas and Indian women at the gaming tables. The old time dance hall with its musicians was very realistic.

Diamond Lil, Diamond Jim Brady and all the other historical characters of the gold rush days were on hand.

Eats and drinks were dispensed in real days of '49 style.

A slight of hand performance and other entertainment features held the interest of the big crowd, many of whom remained until four o'clock Sunday morning.

Despite the rainy weather Sunday afternoon, the climax of the big event, the street parade was held and was viewed by a great crowd. Hundreds of cars were parked all over the town.

The parade was about two blocks long. The old time prairie schooner or "covered wagon" with goats tied on behind, the old style stage, the chuck wagon, miners, prospectors, Indians, cow boys and cow girls, the sheriff, the Salvation Army lass, colored mammy, pack mule and the folks of Red Gulch, all were depicted in customs and regalia of their period.

After marching up Oak Park avenue, the parade circled back to the Saenger hall where fun and entertainment reigned supreme until after midnight.

Over 90 persons in costume took part in the affair and all carried out their parts to perfection.

The Civic Club of Tinley Park sponsored the "Days of 49". A great deal of personal credit is due to Harry Trevarthen of Tinley Park who so ably handled and directed the affair which was such a wonderful success that it passed beyond the fondest hopes of its promoters. It is estimated that fully over 5,000 persons attended the two day roundup.

The proceeds were exceptionally large and the profits will be used for local civic purposes.

People from all the surrounding communities and from Chicago were in attendance. Tinley again proved she has the "I Will" spirit and can put things over in a big way.

All the business men joined in a big round-up sale Friday and Saturday and report excellent sales and a big increase over the usual week end volume of business.

The Civic Club will meet next Monday night to hear reports on the receipts realized and the profits cleared for civic purposes.

Several months were required to prepare for and stage the big event and all agree it was more than worth while.

TINLEY MOVIES WILL START THIS SATURDAY

Starting Saturday, October 23rd and every Saturday thereafter there will be a show starting at approximately 8:15 p. m., and running the short subjects first until about 9:00 p. m. at the Tinley Park public school auditorium. Following this the weekly merchants award will be made and then a feature picture will be shown, after that for those coming in late, the shorts will be repeated so that persons attending can get their shopping done and get into the show as late as 9:00 p. m. for the award and still see the complete program.

This week five prizes are to be awarded by the merchants. There will be one $10.00, two $5.00 awards and $2.00 and $1.00. This week's talking program is as follows: "Lair of Chang-How," "Travelogue, Chinese River Pirates," Wedge Play, Football Spotlights, "Mickey's Merriemen," Our Gang Comedy, "Passport to Paradise" is the feature picture. A fast moving comedy packed with action. Extra short subjects.

Former Frankfort Resident Dies In Ottawa

The community was very sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Lulu Moss of Ottawa, Ill. She will be better known as Lulu Hellerman for she is the daughter of Mrs. Anna Hellerman formerly of Frankfort but now a resident of 837 N. Raynor Ave., Joliet. She had been in poor health for some time for she had been in the sanatorium since May. The sympathy of the people went out to those who mourn her death especially her husband and mother. Her remains were buried on Tuesday in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

Orland Fire Chief Home from Hospital

Fire Chief John Helenhouse of Orland Park who was badly injured in a recent automobile accident and who was a patient in Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, was brought to his home in Orland Park last Sunday and is getting along as well as can be expected.

District Supt. Will Speak In Tinley M.E.

Rev. Ralph M. Pierce, D. D. Superintendent of the Joliet-Dixon district of the Methodist Episcopal church, will occupy the pulpit of the First Methodist church in Tinley Park, Sunday morning. Rev. Pierce is not a stranger to Tinley Park people, though it has been over a year since he last spoke here.

The service begins at eleven o'clock with the minister of the local church presiding. Dr. Pierce will speak on "The High Calling of God". The public is invited to attend this service as they are invited to attend all services of the Methodist church.

Following the services Dr. Pierce will hold the church's First Quarterly conference. It is of utmost importance that all official members of the church be present at this meeting and all friends and members of the church are urged to come.

Favorite Recipe of the Week

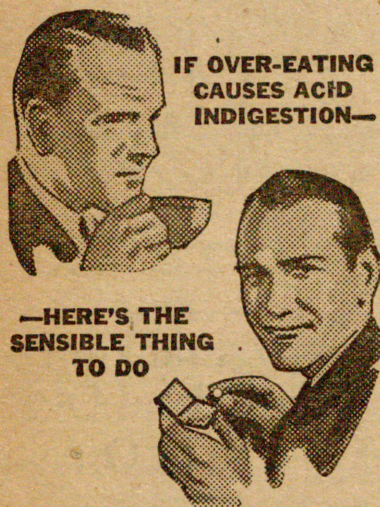

FRESH fruit pies are always good, but fresh grape pies are worthy of superlatives in description. The thickening may be cornstarch, eggs, flour or tapioca, depending upon preference. Tapioca is suggested in this recipe.

Grape Pie.

3½ cups prepared grapes
2½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups sugar

Wash and stem the grapes. Press the pulp from the skins with the fingers. Simmer pulp slowly until soft, then press through sieve to remove the seeds. Combine 3½ cups of pulp and skins together with salt, sugar and tapioca and let stand for 15 minutes. Place rolled pastry in pie pan. Fill pan with grape mixture. Moisten edge of pastry and fold inward, even with the edge of the pan. Moisten edge again and place top pastry on side. Press edges together with a fork and trim off surplus crust. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees) for fifteen minutes. Decrease heat to 350 degrees, moderate heat, and bake about twenty-five minutes longer.

CARRY YOUR ALKALIZER WITH YOU

IF OVER-EATING CAUSES ACID INDIGESTION—

—HERE'S THE SENSIBLE THING TO DO

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkalizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready.

Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonsful of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," over-acid stomach are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

Jerry Field was breathless from the effort of shaking off congratulatory hands which had tried to detain him.

"Changing her sandals at Lookout House. I've got to speak to you, Trent! Quick!"

Relief stopped the thumping of Mark Trent's heart. Had Brooke married Field, would he be here? He would not. He turned to Kowa still standing beside him and asked in a voice he had difficulty in keeping steady:

"Is anyone in the print room?"

The Jap disappeared and returned with incredible speed.

"No person there, sir."

Mark spoke in a low tone to Jerry Field:

"Slip into the room back of the stairs. Sam, tell the musicians to play something loud and gay; then join us. Now that we know Brooke is safe, Mrs. Gregory—"

"Mrs. Gregory is coming with us," Jed Stewart interrupted.

Even with the door of the room closed, the beat and rhythm of the music outside set the air within vibrating. A cheery fire crackled on the hearth. Incredibly long-stemmed Templar roses in a tall vase made a splash of gorgeous crimson against the neutral tinted walls hung with Japanese prints, scented the air with their spicy fragrance. Mrs. Gregory resisted the seductive depth of a large chair and sat erect on the edge.

"What's happened? What's happened?" she demanded testily.

"Wait a minute. Thought I heard something," Field pulled aside the hangings at the window and peered out; Jed Stewart on his toes looked over his shoulder. "Yep, there they go. Police are no respecters of supper parties."

Jerry Field drew the hangings close and returned to the mantel. The lighter he held to his cigarette was not quite steady. "Now, folks, listen to my bedtime story."

For an instant there was no sound in the still room save the purr of the fire and the tap of a snowy vine against a window. Then it seemed to Mark Trent that the woman in the deep chair, Sam Reyburn with his elbow resting on one corner of the low bookshelves, Jed Stewart backed against the door as if to barricade it, stopped breathing as Field told how Brooke had commandeered his roadster and himself to take her across the causeway, of the reason she had given for her going, of her suspicion that the man she called the Bath Crystal Bandit might be serving as waiter at the party because of interest in the jewels of one of the guests.

Mrs. Gregory instinctively put one hand to her tiara and one of the blazing plastron at her breast.

"I suppose you mean mine. When did they intend to take them?" she quavered.

Mark Trent crossed the room. He sat on the arm of her chair and put his hand on her shoulder.

"Steady, Empress, they can't get them now. Go on, Field. Then you and Brooke are not married?"

"Married! No such luck. Didn't I make that clear? Brooke told that yarn to avert suspicion from our get-away. Do you think I'd be here if we were married?" There was a glint of steel in his eyes as they met Mark Trent's.

"Where was I—oh yes. We made headquarters in record time. Brooke told her story. Your kitchen, Trent, was the scene of the nearest, quickest clean-up in the history of crime in this state, I'll bet. No, don't go. Inspector Harrison sent special instructions to you to keep things moving here so that the news of the arrests wouldn't get out until he had the men safely in jail. Sorry to report that you've lost your chauffeur, Mrs. Gregory."

"Dominique! Not Dominique? He's been with me for years. Why have I lost him?"

"He's been taken along for questioning. The inspector didn't have time to go into it here. The Jacques at Lookout House also are being personally conducted to headquarters. Quite a party, if you ask me. I didn't hear much, but your man Dominique, Mrs. Gregory, was to have engine trouble on the way home. While he tinkered, you were to be relieved of your jewels."

Anne Gregory's face was gray; it dropped into sagging lines, her mouth quivered childishly. Suddenly she was an old defeated woman.

"Isn't there anyone in the world I can trust?" she whimpered.

Mark Trent moved closer to her. "Of course there's someone you can trust, you have Brooke and Sam, Jed and me, and—"

"Don't forget me," Jerry Field interrupted. "Now, who's come?"

The low quick knocking at the door was repeated. Jed Stewart opened it cautiously and let in a drift of dance music and Lucette.

Her lips were startlingly red in contrast to the whiteness of her face. The rhinestone straps which held up what there was of the back of the bodice of her pale blue frock sent out a million or two iridescent sparks. She caught the lapel of Mark Trent's coat as he took a quick step toward her.

"They're whispering outside that Brooke and Jerry Field have eloped. It isn't so, is it? Brooke wouldn't—"

WNU Service.

Mark Trent turned her by the shoulders that she might see Jerry Field standing by the mantel. He saw the look in the girl's eyes, saw something in the man's spring up to meet it. He felt the quiver that ran through her body, felt the effort she made to overcome it as she said flippantly:

"News flash! Elopement bridegroom returns without lovely bride. Where's Brooke, Jerry?"

"Changing her wet sandals at Lookout House."

"Wet sandals! Where has she been?"

"She'll be here in a minute and tell you herself, Lucette. Better go back to the party," Mark Trent suggested.

"The New York producer and the Boston manager are still here, aren't they? We're depending on you to see that they have the time of their lives."

"Boy, when Brooke didn't appear, I forgot those bozos, forgot that we'd had a play." With his hand on the knob of the door, Sam stopped.

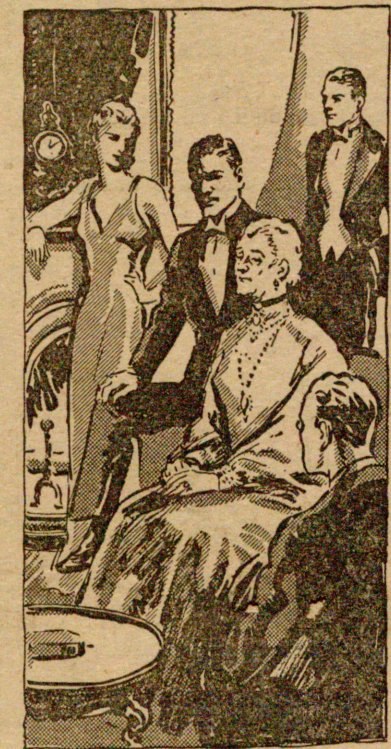

"Come along, Lucette."

Lucette caught Field's arm.

"Come with us, Jerry, and stop the rumor that you and Brooke have eloped; also we'll let people tell us what hits we were in 'Islands Arise.'"

"Suppose we go back to the party," Mark Trent suggested, and offered his arm to Mrs. Gregory.

As Mark Trent stepped back that Mrs. Gregory might precede him into the hall, Jed Stewart caught his arm.

"Sorry to Report That You've Lost Your Chauffeur, Mrs. Gregory."

"Just a minute, fella!" He lowered his voice. "The inspector wants us to wait up until he gets here, no matter if he doesn't come till daylight."

Mark nodded assent. The throb of a harp, the singing of the violins, the quaver of the horns, the brooding of the oboe were muted to a caressing minor, heart-breakingly sweet, as he piloted Mrs. Gregory to a throne-like chair in the hall. He left her and went in search of the New York producer. It required considerable finesse to evade clamorous friends. Even as he acknowledged praise of his acting, congratulations on the party, he was thinking what a queer, aching, vivid thing love was, with its ecstasy, its inevitable misunderstandings, its quarrels, and he wondered why he bruised his heart against Brooke's dislike, wondered if she would ever forgive him for that kiss. At least he—

"Mark! Mark!"

Before he had a chance to evade her, Daphne Field flung a bare arm about his neck.

"Dance with me, please! Mark! Mark! You must love me!" The girl's voice caught in a sob as she pressed against him.

Too annoyed to answer, he put his arm about her to guide her out of the room. As he turned he saw Brooke Reyburn standing directly behind her. There was a curious light in her eyes, a mocking smile on her lips.

Even as Brooke smiled and accepted congratulations on the success of her brother's play, did her best to entertain the New York producer who attached himself to her from the moment Sam presented him, she was asking herself impatiently:

"Will the party never end? Who stole that paper from my desk? Can I make Mark Trent understand why I held it back? If it is lost, will he ever forgive me?"

But all parties end. The last of the guests, with Mrs. Gregory carefully tucked into their limousine, drove off in a flood of moonlight which transformed the world into an enchanted land of dazzling purity. The producer and manager left in a powerful car after hearty handshakes with Sam and a backward look at Brooke as she stood between her brother and Mark Trent in the hall. Except for the Reyburns, the Fields were the last to go.

She drew an unsteady breath of relief when the front door had shut out the brother and sister. They were outlanders in the present situation. She couldn't have told her story before them, and she must tell it quickly; that will must be found. She wanted Lucette and Sam to hear what she had to tell Mark Trent and Jed Stewart; the sooner they knew of the change in her fortune, the better.

Mark Trent linked his arm in Sam's.

"Don't wig-wag the let's-go signal at the girls, maestro. Jed and I can't let you off yet. Come into the library. Half the fun of a party is talking it over. I told Kowa to bring in some eats. I don't believe you Reyburns ate a mouthful of supper; you were too busy receiving congratulations. I'm starving myself."

Sam grinned.

"Now that you call the matter to my attention, I could toy with a little food. Come on, Brooke."

Lucette was curled up against the pillows in a corner of the library couch hugging her knees, when they entered. Stewart was backed up to the mantel. The girl's eyes were brilliant, her cheeks were pink, the voice in which she greeted them was bumpy from excitement:

"Come in, folks, and hear Jed tell me how good I was. He predicts that I would be an overnight sensation on Broadway."

"Snap out of that idea and snap out of it quick."

"Don't growl, Master Reyburn; he has been handing bouquets to the play too. I done you wrong, Sammy, when I crabbed about the last minute changes you made in the script; they were the high lights. Where's Jerry?"

Mark Trent answered Lucette's question.

"He and Daphne have gone home. You put it all over the other women in the cast of 'Islands Arise,' Lucette."

"She was a knockout and so was the leading woman," Sam agreed, "but, if you want to know who had the New York producer eating out of her hand, it was our little sister Brooke. After she arrived—trust a Reyburn to realize the dramatic value of a late entrance—I couldn't pry him away from her; lucky I got my option before she appeared. What were you saying to him, Brooke?"

"We talked theater fast and furiously. It was a wonder that I could think of anything but the near escape the party had from a hold-up."

Kowa entered with his quick cat-like tread. His eyes sparkled like black diamonds as he set a Chinese teapoy of red and gold lacquer beside each chair.

"Boy, I'm tired! I feel all in," Sam confessed.

"It's reaction, and I'll bet you haven't eaten for hours and hours." Mark Trent spoke to Kowa as he returned with a laden tray.

"Serve Mr. Sam first. Here you are, maestro."

Sam's grin was swift and a trifle sheepish.

"I'm all right, m'lud; slumped for a minute, that's all."

"Don't apologize," Lucette mimicked.

"I'm not apologizing. I'm explain—"

Sam broke off with a grimace at his sister. "Humorous, aren't you, kiddo? Fuss over Brooke, Mark, she needs it more than I. What with bracing me every time I got cold feet about 'Islands Arise' and getting dragged into the crime wave, she's had a hectic time since she came to Lookout House to live—I'll take another shot at those rolls, Kowa—I don't wonder she has decided to trek back to the town apartment. What will we do with the parrot when we go, Brooke?"

Brooke felt her color rise in response to the flash in Mark Trent's eyes as they met hers reflected in the great mirror. This was as good an opening as any she could bring about to tell the story of the paper Henri had produced. She rose and stood behind her chair.

"We won't have to consider the parrot, Sam. Mr. Micawber has gone."

"Gone!" Sam and Lucette chorused.

"Did he make another get-away, or has Henri kidnapped him?"

"Neither, Sam. He's in his cage, just a heap of green feathers."

"Poor old duffer. He hasn't had any pep since the night he took off in a hop for freedom. I liked that bird. Something's always taking the joy out of life."

"Cheerio, Master Reyburn, you still have your option," Lucette reminded. "Why can't we move to town tomorrow? No more commuting! What a break! I suppose you'll close Lookout House, Brooke?"

Brooke tried to force a gay note into her voice:

"I'll close Lookout House, Lucette, because I have accepted an offer—"

The sentence trailed off as Inspector Bill Harrison strode into the room.

"Well, Mark, I got it!"

"Got 'it!' You're too modest, Inspector, you got the whole gang, I understand."

"Cripes, I'm not talking about those dirty thugs, Mark. That isn't what I came for. I got the will you was telling me about."

The Joke's on Him

WHEN Joe Miller, a famous English comedian of the Eighteenth century, died in August, 1738, it was discovered that his widow received as her legacy naught but memories of an amiable and faithful, but improvident, husband. Thereupon a certain publisher named T. Read, a shrewd fellow of speculative tendencies, engaged a man named John Motley to gather together all the current jests of the day and set them in type.

Soon afterwards there appeared in the bookstalls of London a volume which bore this imposing title: "Joe Miller's Jest, or the Wits Vade Mecum. Being a Collection of the most Brilliant Jest, the Politest Repartees, the most Elegant Bon Mots, and most pleasant short Stories in the English Language. First carefully collected in the Company, and many of them transcribed from the Mouth of the Facetious Gentleman, whose Name they bear; and now set forth and published by his Lamentable Friend and former Companion, Elijah Jenkins, Esq. Most Humbly Inscribed to those Choice-Spirits of the Age, Captain Bodens, Mr. Alexander Pope, Mr. Professor Lacy, Mr. Orator Henley, and Job Banker, the Kettle-Drummer."

The book was immediately popular and was followed by an endless succession of "Joe Miller" joke books. As a result, the name "Joe Miller" became firmly fixed in the consciousness of the English-speaking races as a synonym for "joke," and even today many of the wisecracks of the funny men of the stage, screen and radio are credited to him, especially when their audiences groan instead of laugh!

But the joke of it all is this: This man who, for two centuries, has been regarded as the King of Jest, was a solemn fellow who not only never joked in his life (except when repeating his lines on the stage) but was utterly unable to see the point of a joke when it was told him by other men.

Antiquarian Discovery

ARE you one of those who believe that "the English have no sense of humor"? If so, read this confession which appeared in a London newspaper trade journal back in 1875:

An editor man is very sore (the word is too new to allow of names being mentioned) at having recently been thoroughly hoaxed. A copy of an ancient inscription was sent for insertion to a local, the original of which was professedly taken from a stone found in excavating the foundations for some new buildings in Queen Victoria street. The following note accompanied it and with the inscription duly appeared:

"I enclose copy of an inscription in mediaeval Latin from a stone discovered during the excavations in Queen Victoria street, where as you doubtless are aware, there formerly stood a church dedicated to a Saxon saint and missionary, of whom many traces and relics still exist. He is known to the monkish chroniclers by the name of Uncatus Ambulans."

"Perhaps a copy might be suitable for your well-known and extensively-read paper and some of your antiquarian readers may be able to supply a translation."

ISAACILL HOERES AGO.
FORTIBUS .ES.IN.ARO.
NOSCE MARL. THESE TRUX
VOTIS INNEM . PESAN.DUX.

A metrical translation was forwarded next day, and was inserted with a note that "we knew all the time it was a hoax, and only inserted it as a joke," but those who saw Arthur just after he received the translation, say they cannot reconcile his look of agonized horror and the awful profanity of his language with his public explanation.

"Inscription on stone discovered on the site of church of St. Walker, called by the monkish chroniclers, 'Uncatus Ambulans' (Hookey Walker)."

"I say, Billy, here's a go, Forty buses in a row, No, see Marry! they be trucks; Vot is in 'em? Peas and Ducks."

"Massacre at Empire City"

THE silver mining business was booming in Nevada and her neighbor, California, was beginning to be more than a little jealous of her prosperity, especially since so many Californians were investing heavily in Nevada mining stock. So the newspapers in that state began advising the public to dispose of its Nevada stock and invest in California gold mines.

And then one day a shocking story appeared in the Virginia City (Nev.) Territorial Enterprise. It seems that a man in Empire City had followed the advice of the "foreign papers." Then, remorseful over his treason to home town industry and home town prosperity, he had killed himself, his wife and their nine children.

The story caused a sensation not only in Nevada but in every part of the country to which the telegraph wires carried it. Then the newspaper man who wrote the story of this "massacre" revealed that it was all a fake, written solely to point a "trade-at-home" moral.

Years later he confessed, "The idea that anybody could ever take my massacre for a genuine occurrence never once suggested itself to me, hedged about as it was by all those tell-tale absurdities and impossibilities." But such was his genius in telling a plausible story that the public did accept it unhesitatingly. His name was Mark Twain.

Fruit of Suffering

Out of suffering comes the serious mind; out of the salvation, the grateful heart; out of the deliverance, the faith.—Ruskin.

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month. You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

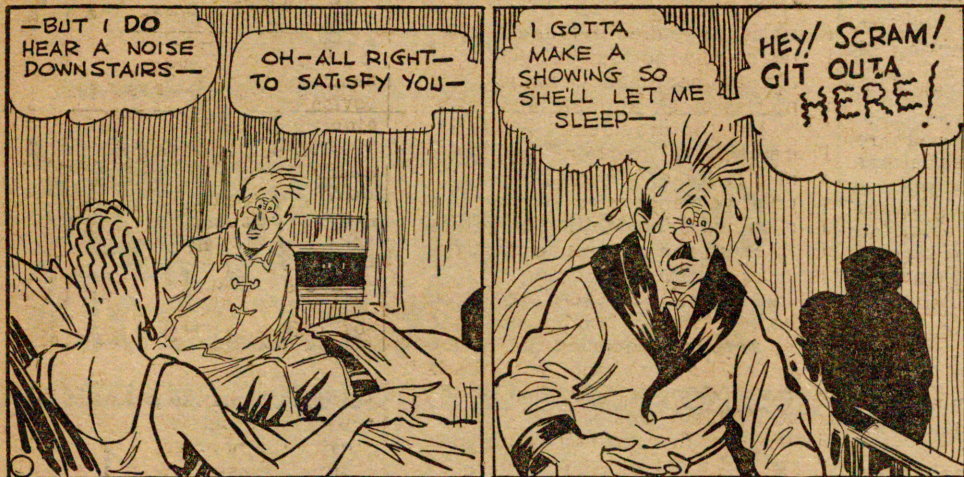

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

READY TO BRING YOU RELIEF IN MINUTES

THE REASON BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.

YOU can pay as high as you want for remedies claimed to relieve the pain of Headache, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica, etc. But the medicine so many doctors generally approve—the one used by thousands of families daily—is Bayer Aspirin—15¢ a dozen tablets—about 1¢ apiece. Simply take 2 Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Repeat, if necessary, according to directions. Usually this will ease such pain in a remarkably short time. For quick relief from such pain which exhausts you and keeps you awake at night—ask for genuine Bayer Aspirin.

Will Broadcast
Lutheran Hour
Next Sunday

Dr. Walter A. Maier, Ph. D., nationally known Lutheran theologian, will begin a new series of Sunday afternoon broadcasts on the Lutheran Hour, over a coast-to-coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting System, next Sunday, October 24 at 3:30 p. m.

In four previous series of Lutheran Hour talks, Dr. Maier has attracted widespread attention by his vigorous denunciation of anti-Christian influences, atheism and communism, and by his uncompromising advocacy of fundamental religious life based on the scriptures. His talks have been marked by sharp criticism of religious opportunists who amend their doctrines and revise their spiritual viewpoints to conform to new social theories.

A graduate of Boston University, Concordia Seminary, of St. Louis and Harvard, Dr. Maier also has been distinguished for his books and tracts on religious and religious-social topics. He is a member of the faculty of Concordia Seminary, the chief theological seminary of the Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, being professor of Hebrew and Old Testament interpretation.

More than 91,000 letters were received from the Lutheran Hour audience last fall, including thousands of "problem" letters received direct by Dr. Maier in response to his offer of personal spiritual advice for listeners who had no church affiliation. Dr. Maier was the first executive secretary of his church's young peoples work, and since 1920 has been editor of the Walther League Messenger, one of the largest Christian young peoples' journals in the country.

Housekeeper and Maid—Openings outside of Joliet, include Lockport, Plainfield, Lemont, Flossmoor, Chicago, Elwood and Gardner which pay from $3.00 to $10.00 week.

Chief Engineer—To take full charge of power plant. Must have knowledge of turbines and steam generators, pumps, electric motors, the combustion of powdered fuel and control of high pressure boiler. Pays a minimum of $200.00 month.

There is no charge to either the applicant or employer. All applicants must register at the Joliet office.

Huskers Available—There are several experienced bushel huskers registered, either go home or stay nights. Tel. Joliet 4756.

VICTOR HERBERT'S "Only Girl" JOLIET LEGION'S SHOW FOR BENEFIT XMAS PARTY

By going to see the Joliet American Legion's show at the Joliet High School, November 3rd and 4th, the public is not only assured the pleasure of witnessing an uproariously funny farce that was a sensational success on Broadway, namely, Victor Herbert's "ONLY GIRL", but every one attending one of these performances will know that he or she has had a part in helping Harwood Post put over their annual Christmas party to which the poor children of the entire community have learned to look forward with keen anticipation.

The comedy of the "Only Girl" is all of the domestic variety and founded on the situations arising between husbands and wives who are mis-fits. Some of it's song and dance hits heard frequently over the radio are "When You're Away"; "When You Wear the Ball and Chain Around Your Ankle"; "Personality"; "You Have to Have a Part to Make a Hit"; "Why Should We Stay Home and Sew"; "Here's to the Land we Love"; "Sweet Connubial Bliss."

The cast is mostly professional. The director is Ralph Dunbar a former New York producer.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 17.

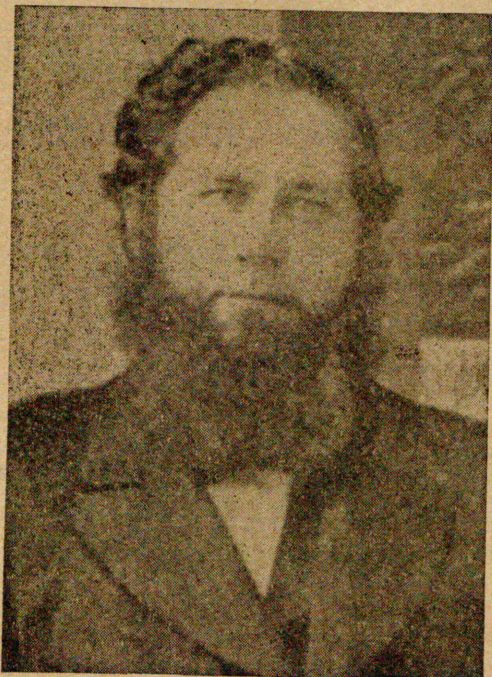

The Golden Text was, "God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord" (1 Cor. 1:9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon were the following from the Bible: "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. And we have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world" (1 John 4:9, 14).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Willingness to become as a little child and to leave the old for the new, renders thought receptive of the advanced idea. Gladness to leave the false landmarks and joy to see them disappear,—this disposition helps to precipitate the ultimate harmony. The purification of sense and self is a proof of progress" (p. 323-4).

Pastors Who Have Builtup St. Peter's Evan. Church

Rev. F. Walter Was First Pastor of St. Peter's Evan. Church, Frankfort

The first resident pastor to serve St. Peter's congregation was Rev. F. Walter who served from 1873 to 1881. One of the most important events of this period was the organization of the Ladies Aid Society in 1875. This society has been of invaluable assistance to the growth of the church during the past 62 years. Rev. Mr. Walter accepted a call to another church in 1881.

First St. Peter's Evan. Church In Frankfort Built In 1867

The first St. Peter's Evangelical church in Frankfort was erected in 1868, at a cost of $2182. The congregation was organized on Reformation Day October 28, 1867.

Shortly after the congregation was founded funds were raised for the erection of a house of worship and $537 were subscribed at the first meeting.

After the organization, the congregation secured the services of Rev. F. Menzel who then was the pastor of the St. Peter's church in Green Garden Township and who conducted bi-weekly services in the old Frankfort Baptist church which, at that time stood where the present residence of Peter Folkers is located. These services were held until the new church could be dedicated on July 19, 1868. The membership grew rapidly from 11 to 30 families in the first year. The church was in active use until 1916 when the new church home was occupied. The old church was later torn down.

Rev. G. S. Gerhold Present Spiritual
Guide of St. Peter's Church

Rev. G. S. Gerhold, the present pastor of St. Peter's Evangelical church succeeded Rev. Lambrecht and became the pastor of this church in June 1926.

The erection of the new modern parsonage was begun in that year at a cost of $14,500. The new parsonage was dedicated in December of the same year.

An athletic association was organized in 1928 and a play ground was provided.

The church basement was rebuilt and a heating and ventilating plant was added in 1930 at a cost of $6775.

A new pipe organ was purchased in 1923 at a cost of $4300.

This year another $3300 have been spent in making repairs, alterations and installations.

This church has a very active Sunday School with a total enrollment of 426 scholars and 21 teachers. The Ladies Aid Society at present has a membership of 110. The Martha Sewing Circle named in honor of the deceased wife of the late Rev. G. Lambrecht, was organized in 1925 and at present has 17 members.

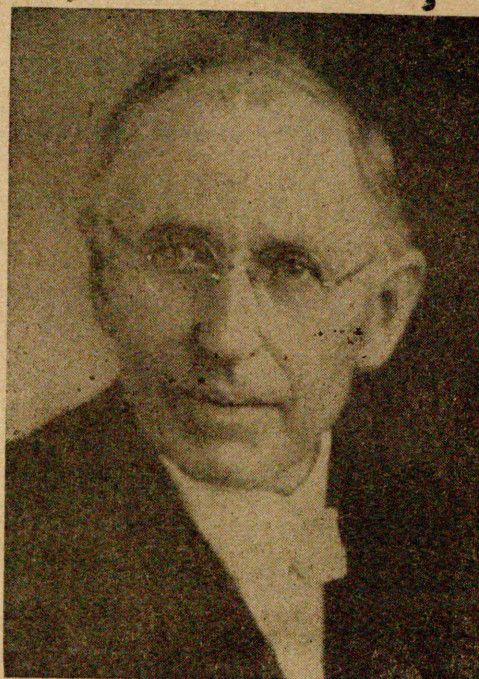

The Young People's Society is also quite an active department of this church.

The Brotherhood organized in 1917 has a present enrollment of 72 members. It is now known as the Men's Bible Class and the work of this group is carried on under the able leadership of Attorney A. H. Krusemark.

The Pastor's Records show that during the past 70 years there were 1135 baptisms, 846 confirmants, 338 marriages and 626 funerals.

The many friends of this congregation extend well wishes for continued growth and activity in the community.

Rev. G. Lambrecht Builder of New St. Peter's Evan. Church

In May 1889 Rev. G. Lambrecht came to the pastorate of St. Peter's Evangelical church in Frankfort and served this congregation for 36 years, the longest pastorate of any of the ministers who have served this charge.

It was during this period that the congregation enjoyed a normal growth. All departments of the church were organized for efficient service. The outstanding event of this period, was the erection of the present church. The old church having outlived its usefulness, the congregation decided in 1912 not to rebuild the old church but to build a new one. A building fund was created and in 1915 the building was begun at an approximate cost of $20,000 and was completed and dedicated February 6, 1916.

Rev. G. Lambrecht continued to serve as pastor until 1925. On Christmas eve of that year, Pastor Lambrecht, who had given most of his years in the ministry to serving the church, was called to his eternal reward, tired but happy in the thought that his labors in God's Kingdom had not been in vain.

NEW AUTOMATIC WASHER TAKES DRUDGERY OUT OF WASHDAY

Announcement has been made of the appointment of Clarence Beagley of 159th street and 94th avenue, Orland Park, as representative here for the Bendix home laundry, a new machine which washes, rinses and damp-dries clothes ready for the line in a series of automatic operations are said to revolutionize the wash-day routine.

The name Bendix, prominently identified with precision equipment in the automotive and aeronautical industries, made its appearance in the home appliance field recently when the machine was first introduced at South Bend, Ind., although Mr. Beagley will be the first to feature the apparatus in this territory.

Mr. Beagley was one of the first to become part of the national dealer organization of the Bendix Home Appliances Corporation of South Bend, manufacturers of the machine. This sales organization was complete even before the first machine came off the production line, many distributors and dealers take representation for it on the strength of previews given by demonstration models.

Handling a nine pound wash at one time, the Bendix home laundry in a matter of minutes automatically washes them, gives them three fresh water rinses and after the last rinse spins the clothes damp-dry. The machine then is automatically shut off. The operator handles the clothes only twice; once, when they are placed in the machine dry, and again when they are removed for the line.

Local demonstrations will begin as soon as the first shipment of machines is received here.

HYBRID SEED FIELDS AND GET YOUR LAST 1937 demonstration of yield capacity of Thomson's Top-Yield Hybrid Corn to guide yourselves in proper selection of your 1938 seed corn. It takes roots to make yield and after maturity, when all the nutrition roots have been absorbed and the stalk anchorage depends entirely upon the water vascular root system, the stalks are still well anchored you have the best evidence of root extensiveness with its drought resistance and assurance of yield. Thomson's Hybrid will make more yield and more money for you out of your 1938 corn program. See the unhusked field immediately on Lincoln Highway one-half mile west of U. S. 45.

Congress—and Its Special Session

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Congress, as this is written, is preparing to convene at Washington in special session.

Meanwhile America wonders what that session will bring forth.

Many things have been promised. But, as most Americans remember, many things were also promised before the preceding session—and failed to materialize. Out of it came principally a long and bitter battle to preserve our Constitutional concept of a balanced form of government.

In this period of nation-wide tribute to the Constitution on its 150th anniversary, citizens will hope that the need for such a conflict will not reappear.

They will hope that Washington will give its full time, instead, to legislation devoted to the equal well-being of all citizens.

Relief from the rising costs of living which affect every segment of our 129,000,000 people, expanded opportunities for employment, continued progress in our national development, elimination of unnecessary waste, renewed confidence in our agencies of government—these are some of the things that the people seek from Washington.

It is a familiar and a traditionally American demand. It was what Thomas Jefferson had in mind when, in discussing the ideals of our early Republic, he wrote:

"A wise and frugal government which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned! This is the sum of good government."

With that precept as its guide, Congress could make the special session well worth while.

What 128,000,000 Consumers Want

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Recent estimates by the Bureau of the Census place our population at approximately 128,000,000.

That includes everyone within the territorial boundaries of the United States. That is the group for which our government is conducted, and by which it is supported. That is the American nation.

How is this huge group faring? In the one thing that concerns it most—the cost of living—not so well!

From housewives and wage-earners throughout the nation are heard protests against the increasing strains imposed on the family budget; against the deepening dips into the weekly pay envelope required for the necessities of life.

In cases where the family income has remained stationary, the burden entailed is serious. In those rarer instances where income has risen, the benefits of such increase have been offset by the higher costs of food, rent, clothing and equipment essential to life and work.

This is not what our 128,000,000 consumers expect when the politicians promise them better conditions. What they anticipate is not less for their labors, but more.

Neither politicians nor the government—as experience has proved—can fix successfully or directly the cost of commodities. But they can reduce the high cost of living, by cutting the high cost of government—for again, as experience has proved, the two are twins.

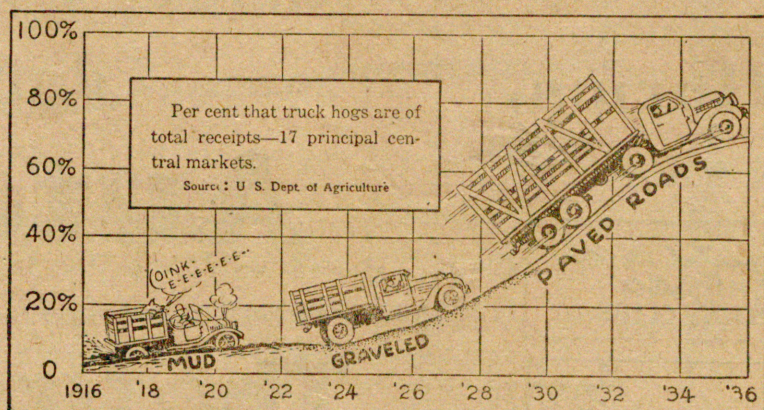

A steady climb in the public debt, and a corresponding rise in political payrolls is not the way to lighten either of those burdens. If the government wants to help its people, let it lower its own costs then watch the cost of living fall in unison.

And 128,000,000 consumers will cheer such a program.

Trend in Receipts of Hogs by Motor Truck

An indication of the growth and significance of the motor truck in the movement of livestock to market is shown in the graph above. Beginning at zero in 1916, the percentage of "drive-ins" of hogs (truck receipts) at the 17 principal central markets has steadily increased, mounting to better than 60% in 1936.

The capacity, speed, and flexibility of movement of the modern motor truck, the increased mileage of all-weather roads, the marked advances in the completion of connecting highways, and the convenience of pickup service at the farm are some of the reasons for increased use of trucks for the comparatively shorter haul. However, longer hauls to more distant markets are still being made almost entirely by railroad. Of the livestock received at the 17 central markets, about one-third requires a further haul, either as slaughter or as stocker and feeder livestock. Such shipments are usually made by rail. Probably an even greater percentage of the total receipts at the interior markets are received by truck, which in itself is an important reason for the growth in the direct selling of hogs.

A demonstration of instruments will be given in the very near future, and all parents will be invited to attend, particularly parents of those who have passed the examination. A note from Mr. Strom tells us that the band needs more clarinet players, also mellophones and basses.

Picking Seed Corn

From our earliest years we can recall our interest in the picking and selection of seed corn and the type and appearance of ear that was selected and the many kinds that were rejected. Usually we assumed that the characters of the ears that were chosen and the reasons assigned therefor by our home folks were correct and this was taken without question although we may have at time questioned the neighbor's judgement on his selection of seed ears. The spirit that prompted, and the industry shown in the gathering, selection and preservation of seed corn is to be highly recommended but the correctness of view and rules of selection should always be open to question and investigation. Where scientifically conducted experiment point out either an error or improvement we should not close our minds to at least the consideration of the changes proposed.

If we go back to our home custom of seed corn selection we first can appreciate that no check up nor sufficiently broad experiment was even made to demonstrate the correctness of our judgement. As successive years went by we observed and commended ourselves for the good points the successive plantings would show but closed our eyes to weaknesses or deficiencies. At least we did not question that our established methods of seed corn selection could be open to improvement.

The selection of seed corn from open pollinated corn involves many complex forms. In the consideration of a single ear we know that the stalk and plant is the mother of all the kernels distributed over the ear but we likely have kernels having one hundred or more daddies. We call them pollinators. If each kernel came from an ear that likewise had one hundred different pollinators we have involved in the planting of the kernels of the particular seed ear we have selected ten thousand pollinator grandfathers. Naturally among these ten thousand near ancestors to the corn we are planting we have a lot of undesirable plants. We can call some boarders or even use a crude term from social affairs and say we have a lot of bums, the inherited characteristics of which are at least undesirable. Yet in the selection of the particular ear in question we have no choice of paternal ancestors and we can expect in the progeny of that ear a lot of undesirable plants that we have no way of keeping out. With a hybrid seed ear there are just two grandfather plants each (with the right kind of hybrid) which have fine characters and in this way in hybrids we exclude the boarders, bums, and fall-overs from the heritage of the seed corn we use.

Of course, in the end with open pollinated selection the outstanding thing we were after was yield with quality and if someone had pointed out to us the visible characters of the ear that were the most closely correlated, with yield and quality, with quality we include disease resistance we might have made a better selection of corn.

What makes yield from a plant characteristic standpoint? The capacity of the plant to get plant food from the soil and which it does through the root system. We see that extensiveness in root system is likely to be a big factor in yield and if we could tell what features of the ear are correlated to better root systems it would at least be a help. However, it would be fair to assume, though subject to check up by experiment, that plants whose roots were so short or frail that the stalks fell over long before maturity did not have the root system that could make the highest yield. Hence, it would be needful to see the ear and the stalk on which it grew and how well that stalk was anchored in the ground before we would have the needed evidence of root capacity. This means that whether we use open pollinated seed or hybrid seed we ought to check up the appearance of the plants in the field: either inspect them ourselves or have someone that we know inspect them and on whose observation we can rely.

We will cover next week some of the ear characters that are correlated with root structure but meantime, we still have the opportunity of checking up the well anchored upright stalk with ear characteristics by visiting the remnant of unhusked corn on the Thomson Hybrid Fields on Lincoln Highway.

Four Economic Developments Important to Corn Belt Farms

The increase in good roads, trucks and radios on farms in the Corn Belt has definitely changed farm economics and made the marketing of farm products more flexible, more rapid and more economical. This has been true in more than one direction, and is clearly illustrated above by the increase in the number of hogs sold direct to packers.

The Invasion of the Northwest Corn Belt—1910-34

For many years corn production has marched steadily westward and northward, closely pursued by hog raising, which, in turn, has been followed by the packing plant. The most recent invasion has been into the five Northwest Corn Belt States (Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, and the Dakotas). During the twenty-five year period (1910-1934) shown in the graph above, corn acreage increased 50%; hog production, 60%; and federally inspected hog slaughter, 140%. (U. S. Dept. of Agr.) These changes in corn and hog production in the Northwest Corn Belt occurred simultaneously with reductions in other corn and hog producing sections. Meat packing, as a matter of necessity, followed its moving source of supply. As a result of these changed economic conditions, the Corn Belt's most flourishing industries—corn and hog production and meat packing—have gradually shifted center. This shift to the Northwest is undoubtedly one of the fundamental reasons for the growth of the direct selling of hogs in this area.

- What Jimmy and Sally will accomplish in school this year depends on their eyes.
- If there are serious defects in their vision, by all means see an eye specialist.
- But beyond this first precaution, the first duty of the modern parent is to provide proper lighting facilities in those places in the home where children study, read, work or play.
- Since educators tell us that 87 per cent of all sense impressions come through the eyes, proper lighting is especially needed at the desk or table where school work is to be done at home.
- Check up on the lamps that your children will use. The correct lamp should be high enough that it gives good light over a wide area. It should be so shaded that the bright light will not shine directly into the eyes. If the child sits in an armchair to read, there should be a lamp beside the chair. An excellent lamp for reading or studying is the approved I. E. S. type which can light both upwards and downwards. Light thrown down is softened by a diffusing bowl that also reflects light upward for general illumination. Such illumination eases eye muscles. Without it, the eyes must constantly adjust themselves to areas of brightness and darkness, causing strain and fatigue. These efficient, attractive lamps are on display in many types and sizes at your Public Service store and neighborhood dealers—and at remarkably low prices. See them today!

The Quality of Mercy . . ."

Drawn for the American Red Cross by Lawrence Wilbur

IN THE WAKE OF FLOOD

This scene was enacted many times in refugee centers established by the Red Cross during the Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood. Inevitably floods bring the danger of disease as drinking sources become contaminated and large groups of people are thrown together. The medical-health service of the Red Cross serves thousands each year, and is maintained by membership funds contributed to the organization at the time of its annual Roll Call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving.

RED CROSS OBSERVES NURSING ANNIVERSARY

1937 Marks 25th Year Of Public Health Nursing In Rural Areas

"Prior to inauguration of the Red Cross Town and Country nursing service in 1912, no national effort was made to bring nursing skill to the rural sickbed," James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations for the American Red Cross, said today in commenting on the silver anniversary of Red Cross public health nursing.

In a plea for an increased membership during the coming Red Cross annual Roll Call held from November 11 to the 25th, Mr. Fieser pointed out that Red Cross rural nursing rounds out 25 years of continuous service this year. "It is essential activities such as this which the American people support through membership," he said.

In 1910 Lillian Wald, then head resident of the Henry Street Settlement in New York City proposed that the American Red Cross pioneer in the field of rural nursing. Public health nurses were active in urban districts but a similar provision had been made to guard the health of the rural dweller. Miss Wald felt that the Red Cross was best qualified for the undertaking through its long experience in converting humanitarian ideals into practical accomplishment.

Two years later the first Red Cross rural nurse set forth upon her rounds in a county in Massachusetts. Jacob Schiff, member of the Red Cross Board of Incorporators, and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid each contributed funds to start the project. Special courses of training for nurses resulted in young women who thoroughly knew the mechanics of this new job.

By 1918 there were 100 rural nursing services conducted by Red Cross chapters; and 18 months later the number of services had skyrocketed to 2,000, as the signing of the Armistice released a flood of War nurses for peace-time duty.

"Reorganization and consolidation eventually cut the number of public health nurses serving under the Red Cross flag," Mr. Fieser stated. "But as a group their efficiency increased."

Mr. Fieser called attention to a study of Red Cross public health nursing accomplishments since the service was begun. "Statistics show that in all nearly 3,000 services were established by the Red Cross," he said. "During the past 15 years 6,800 public health nurses were assigned to chapters, and a total of 18,000,000 visits were made to or in behalf of patients."

"Each year during the past 11, more than 440,000 rural school children have been found to have physical defects. Each year 189,000 of these children were helped through treatment."

At the present time there are 666 Red Cross public health nurses engaged in health work in rural communities, and last year more than 1,000,000 visits were made on behalf of the sick.

"It has been our purpose from the first," Mr. Fieser emphasized, "to demonstrate that rural nursing was needed and could be organized. In many instances we have turned established community nursing services over to local health authorities. When this was done, we turned our effort toward opening up additional virgin territory."

Other Red Cross services supported by Roll Call memberships are life saving; first aid; disaster relief and the work of organized Red Cross volunteers.

Many Red Cross chapters carry on extensive civilian relief work. During the past year 120,000 needy families received this type of Red Cross help.

January Floods Reveal Strength of Red Cross

Aid Given 1,062,000 Persons
Through Set-Up
by Agency

The elasticity and scope of Red Cross disaster work is shown in a recent report on Red Cross relief measures during the unparalleled Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood of this year.

At the height of the emergency Red Cross relief offices were established in 182 inundated counties and in 146 counties where refugees were cared for, the report stated. Eight regional headquarters offices controlled the 328 county offices, and were in turn supervised by the National Red Cross in Washington, D. C.

A statistical summary of persons aided by the organization indicates that the floods constituted the greatest peace-time emergency ever faced by the nation. The Red Cross gave some form of assistance to 1,062,000 men, women and children. From January to August hundred of trained workers helped by thousands of volunteers administered to the sufferers.

A Red Cross rescue fleet of 5400 boats was organized, according to the report. Emergency hospitals established totaled 300 and 3600 nurses were assigned to flood duty. In more than 1,000 refugee centers the victims of the flood were sheltered, clothed and fed. Through the Red Cross medical-health program and the work of public health agencies sickness was kept to normal for the time of year in all inundated areas.

Because of its disaster experience the Red Cross was directed by the President of the United States, who is also president of the Red Cross, to coordinate the effort of all federal flood relief groups. Government and Red Cross officials met daily at the Red Cross headquarters building in Washington to plan relief measures and prevent duplication of effort.

"We were fortunate in having 56 years of disaster relief experience to call upon in meeting the emergency," Admiral Gary T. Grayson, chairman of the Red Cross, said.

It was found that 97,000 families composed of 436,000 persons had to have their resources supplemented or an entirely new start provided by the Red Cross, the report stated. Red Cross emergency and rehabilitation assistance was as follows: rescue, transportation and shelter for 62,000 families; food, clothing and other maintenance for 193,000 families; building and repair for 27,000 families; household goods for 90,000 families; medical, nursing and sanitation help for 15,000 families; agricultural rehabilitation for 10,000 families; other occupational aid for 3,000 families and other types of relief for 4,000 families.

"Credit for this largest peace-time relief operation in the history of the nation must go to the American people who contributed a Red Cross relief fund of more than $25,000,000," Admiral Grayson said.

During the year the Red Cross gave aid to the victims of 105 other disasters in 36 states, Alaska and the District of Columbia. The Red Cross financed the majority of these relief operations from money contributed through memberships during the annual Roll Call last November, since it is only in case of large scale disasters that a national drive for relief funds is made.

This year the Roll Call is from November 11th to the 25th. The Red Cross seeks a greater membership to meet its disaster relief and other service obligations during 1938.

Last year Red Cross Chapters gave vital help to 120,000 needy families.

Red Cross Replaces Farm Family Losses

The Red Cross gave agricultural rehabilitation to 10,116 farm families following the severe eastern floods of last winter. Types of aid included feed, seed, livestock, farm tools and machinery and other items essential to agricultural productivity. More than $599,000 was expended by the organization to meet these requirements.

In addition to occupational assistance, rural families hard hit by the flood waters were rescued, clothed, fed and sheltered by the Red Cross. Where it was necessary the Red Cross repaired and rebuilt out-buildings, barns and other structures. Medical and nursing care were provided and homes re-furnished.

Red Cross agricultural rehabilitation benefited nearly three times as many families as received all other types of Red Cross occupational rehabilitation combined.

Labor's advocacy of the Red Cross program is attested by recent statements from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

"Red Cross aims and purposes are highly commendable and deserving of the support of all classes of people," said Mr. Green.

"The activities and service of the American Red Cross satisfy a great need of the people, and I strongly urge that it receive the unqualified support of all during its annual Roll Call for members," Mr. Lewis said.

were approved. Among others a card and bunco party was planned and will be held in the school auditorium Friday evening Oct. 22 at 8 o'clock.

The proceeds will go toward purchasing a set of books for the grammar school students. Dr. W. R. Schussler was the speaker of the evening and gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the possibilities of Orland Park how to attain better transportation and a four year High school course. Also how to care for the health and comfort of the school children.

Our president gave a talk on the value of Cooperation. Several new members were enrolled after which the meeting adjourned and a social hour followed.

Miss Thelma Yunker entertained a small group of friends Saturday Oct. 16 in honor of her brother Stanley's twenty second birthday. Games were played with prizes being awarded to Wilbur Mancke, Arrian Yunker, Geo. and Marie Bruhn. The guests were: Wilbur and Warren Mancke, George and Marie Bruhn, Iona and Parker Enders, Arrian Erwin, and Norman Yunker, Raymond and Myrtle Helmeke.

The regular meeting of the Royal Neighbors of America will be held in Greer's hall Thursday evening October 28 at 8 p. m. It is the request of the Oracle that the members come early so that the meeting may start promptly at 8 o'clock. One candidate, Mae Reish, who will enter by transfer from the Junveniles, will be initiated. A social hour will follow the meeting and an enjoyable evening is promised to all who attend.

The October meeting of the adult Bible Class of the Orland Park M. E. Church was held Wednesday evening October 13 in Greer's hall and proved to be a very interesting and enjoyable affair. Following the usual bible discussion the annual election of officers was held. Mrs. Jake Kramer Sr., who has been president of the organization for several years, attempted to retire from active work as an officer, but so well has she conducted the affairs of the class that she was unanimously elected to continue as their leader. Miss Iva Hansen was re-elected vice president, Mrs. Nora Felton, secretary and Chas. Cooper, treasurer. Miss Hansen was also designated to continue as class teacher.

Following the meeting, the social hour brought forth much fun and good fellowship and was in charge of Mrs. Lillian Knox. The evening ending by the serving of some excellent refreshments. The birthday group, in charge of the evening program consisted of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Beagley, Mr. and Mrs. Len Kay, Mrs. Sherman Knox, John Lindgren and Rev. Manley Mumford.

It is reported that Rev. John Mullen former pastor of the Orland M. E. church has quit the ministry and entered the insurance business.

Halloween pranks are already being indulged in. The driveway into the public school yard was recently shut off by having posts placed across the drive so as to prevent cars from driving in the school yard as it is planned to landscape the yard in the spring. The other night some Halloween pranksters pulled these posts out of the ground and reopened the driveway.

The Christ Lutheran church Ladies Aid will serve a chicken supper and hold a bazaar on November 4th in the Lutheran school.

Miss Lucille Schmadeke and Ernest Woods have been visiting at the August Schmadeke home in Indianapolis.

Pioneer Hybrid Seed Corn

The Pioneer Hi-Bred Corn Company of Illinois, located at Princeton, Ill., held open house and field day, Friday and Saturday October 8 and 9. Approximately two thousand Illinois farmers attended the field days and open house.

Several groups of farmers came to Princeton in cars and school buses, some arrived in large commercial buses chartered by the Pioneer Company. The folks began to arrive at the plant about 10 o'clock in the morning. Most of them stayed in the buses and cars and went directly to the seed production fields. One of the fields was being harvested and the yield was running close to 110 bushels per acre. Other fields have not been harvested, but appear as though they will yield over 100 bushels per acre. Four different fields were inspected showing four different hybrid varieties.

After the tour of the fields was completed, the group met at the high school where a lunch was served. After the lunch, the folks met in the auditorium where a short talk was given on hybrid seed corn followed by a showing of a colored motion picture, "Pioneer Gold". The picture contained actual scenes in all phases of the production and development of Pioneer Hi-Bred Seed Corn.

After the picture, folks returned to the large, modern hybrid corn processing plant where they got to see the plant in full operation, processing Pioneer Hi-Bred Seed Corn. More than 150 men are employed at the plant, night and day shift, processing the hybrid corn at this time of the year. Each ear of the seed is hand sorted and given two additional inspections. After sorting, the corn is dried and snelled, treated, graded, weighed and sacked and ready for delivery in the spring.

Planted in a small plot of ground near the plant was a very interesting plot of several freak varieties of corn. The plot consisted of the shortest corn in existence which when full grown is not more than one foot high. Along side of this short variety, there was the tallest variety known which under good conditions will normally grow fifteen to sixteen feet high. In addition, there was an extremely wide leaved variety, a purple stalk variety, rainbow plants and also, some teapod corn, making a very interesting collection of different types of corn plants.

The following folks from this territory made this trip: Alvin Kohl, John W. Schilling, Art Maue, Wm. Schult, Clyde Yunker, Otto Schilling, Carl Ebert, Herbert Kohl, Herman Dettmering, Robt. Hohenstein

Henry Schilling, Geo. Abbe, Edw. Maue, Christ Hohenstein and Lawrence Kohl. They all felt that their time was well spent.

Have No Original Group Photograph of Lincoln Family

There are no original, group photographs which show all members of the Abraham Lincoln family according to Dr. L. A. Warren director of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company's Lincoln Museum in Fort Wayne, Ind. Group photos often submitted as genuine are nothing more than composite pictures or reproductions of paintings, he said.

Abraham and Mary Todd Lincoln never posed together for any photographer or painter, and it is quite likely that the very great difference in their heights had much to do with this declared Dr. Warren.

An example of these composite reproductions is a Currier and Ives print called "President Lincoln at Home Reading the Scriptures to His Wife and Son." One of the earliest composite studies of the Lincoln family, this picture produced in 1865 from a famous Brady photograph of Lincoln and Tad with Mrs. Lincoln being added later. The photograph album which Lincoln was howing Tad in the original picture was changed to a Bible with the word, Isaiah, plainly visible on the open page.

REDDY FOX HIDES

REDDY FOX stole swiftly through the Green Forest in the direction of the pond of Paddy the Beaver. Reddy took the greatest care to keep out of sight of all the other little forest and meadow people. It would not do to let one of them see him because — well, because you know, he was supposed to be down on the Green Meadows. He had said that he had a very important errand down there which prevented him going to look for Buster Bear as Prickly Porky had asked him to. Of course he hadn't had any errand down on the Green Meadows. It was just an excuse. The truth is he was afraid to look for Buster Bear. And so he had made up that excuse.

Then Jumper the Hare, who, you know, is one of the most timid of all the little people who live in the Green Forest, had offered to go look for Buster Bear. Reddy Fox didn't believe that Jumper really would dare do it, but if he should why would make a splendid dinner. Reddy's mouth watered at the thought.

Now it isn't for nothing that old Mother Nature gives things to her children and so, of course, there is a reason for the long ears of Jumper the Hare. It is that he may be able to hear the slightest noise so that he can run away from danger, for you know he cannot fight. So as he came through the Green Forest he kept stopping every few jumps to look and listen. He had almost reached the pile of brush behind which Reddy was hiding when his long ears caught just the teeniest weeniest sound. Perhaps in his eagerness Reddy rustled a tiny dead leaf. Anyway, Jumper stopped short and looked very hard at the pile of brush. Reddy held his breath and his yellow eyes looked very fierce and hungry. Still Jumper sat there looking and looking. It seemed to Reddy as if he never would move.

Just as Reddy had about made up his mind to rush out and try to catch Jumper where he sat a heavy step sounded behind him. Reddy turned his head hastily. There was the big black stranger who had come to live in the Green Forest. Reddy didn't need to be told that it was Buster Bear. He gave one hasty look at the great claws on Buster's feet and then with a yelp of fright he tucked his tail between his legs and started for home as fast as he could run, the most frightened Fox who ever ran through the Green Forest.

Reddy Didn't Need to Be Told That It Was Buster Bear.

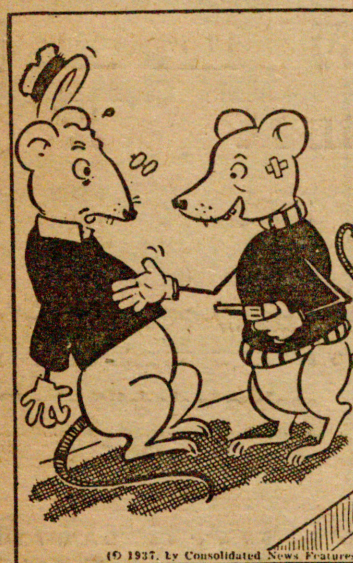

Reddy knew that everybody would say that he was a greater coward than Jumper, and would laugh at him ever after. There was just one thing to do and that was to give Jumper such a fright that he would forget all about Buster Bear. So as soon as he was out of sight of the other little people Reddy had turned into the Green Forest and run as fast as ever he could to head off Jumper the Hare.

Now, Reddy couldn't have done this had Jumper started in a great hurry to look for Buster Bear, because fast as Reddy can run Jumper can run faster. But Jumper had not been in a hurry and so it happened that Reddy was nicely hidden behind a big pile of brush when Jumper came hopping alone. When Reddy saw him coming he smiled and it was a wicked hungry smile. He had started out to scare Jumper, if he could. Jumper would make a very good dinner. Yes, indeed, he

PEOPLE think I'm awful when I don't get my shoes shined, and I think I'm awful when I do. I sit up there on one of those bootblack's high chairs, with my legs stretched to the limit of my skirt and my face as red as my last summer's bathing suit. Honestly, I can't see why bootblacks don't build those silly foot rests closer together, so a girl can at least reach them without so much trouble.

But since they don't and since you do have to have shines, the best way around the awkwardness seems to be to take it knock-kneed. And however you pose when you sit for the bootblack, you want to be sure that you have a full-sized newspaper behind which to hide your face.

MONEY FOR MILK IS WELL SPENT

Most Valuable Food of All Others for Children.

By EDITH M. BARBER

A NATION of milk sops. We are proud to be classified as such in the literal, although, of course, not in the figurative sense of the term. To the fact that milk production, handling and distribution have kept pace with the growth of this huge country, we can give credit to a large extent for the fine physical development of American children.

Milk production is more than purchasing cows, feeding them and milking them. When milk is produced for market, the state takes a hand and inspects the herds for their healthfulness. There are also regulations in regard to cleanliness and sanitation of cow houses and milk houses. There must be facilities for keeping milk chilled until its distribution is begun. Sometimes it must travel many miles to the city distribution plant. It must, of course, be kept cold on its journey. At the milk plant it is weighed and inspected for cleanliness before it is pasteurized as a final precaution for the safety of your milk supply.

After the pasteurization or heating to 140 to 145 degrees Fahrenheit for half an hour, the milk is cooled quickly and then runs directly into sterilized bottles which are capped by machinery. The crates of bottles then go into a refrigerating room from which they are taken by the milkman who delivers them to you.

The safety of your supply of the most valuable food of all is thus guaranteed to you by both the city and state authorities. The money you pay for milk is well spent.

SELECTED RECIPES

Cheese Timbales.

- 4 eggs
- 1 cup hot milk
- 1 cup grated cheese
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon salt

Beat the eggs very light, add to them the hot milk, the grated cheese, green pepper, paprika and salt. Grease timbale molds, fill with the mixture, set in a baking pan of boiling water and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until set. Turn out carefully on a hot platter. Serve at once with tomato or pimento sauce if you wish.

Boiled Fresh Tongue.

- 1 fresh tongue
- ½ cup diced carrots
- ½ cup diced celery
- ½ cup diced onions
- 1 sprig parsley
- Salt
- Peppercorns

Put tongue in boiling water, add vegetables and seasonings and cook slowly until tender. Cool in the water, drain and remove skin.

Golden Cream Tapioca.

- 2 tablespoons granulated tapioca
- 2 cups scalded milk
- ½ cup brown sugar
- Salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Add the tapioca to the milk and cook in a double boiler about 15 minutes until it is transparent. Add the sugar and salt to the egg yolks, and to this add slowly some of the hot mixture. When thoroughly mixed add to the mixture in the double boiler and cook three minutes, constantly stirring. Remove the top of the double boiler, set in cold water and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Add the flavoring and pour into a pudding dish. Serve very cold.

Cottage Cheese Croquettes.

- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ½ cup milk
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- 2 cups cottage cheese
- 2 cups mashed potato
- 1 tablespoon ground onion
- 1 egg well beaten
- Sifted bread crumbs

Prepare a white sauce of butter, milk, flour and seasoning. Stir in the cheese, potatoes and onion. Chill. Form into balls, roll in crumbs, then egg diluted with 1 tablespoon water, then crumbs again. Fry in deep hot fat, 395 degrees Fahrenheit. Drain and serve with tomato sauce.

Swedish Almond Cookies.

- ½ pound shelled almonds
- 3 egg whites
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Wash but do not skin almonds. Dry in a moderate oven ten to fifteen minutes and then put through a food chopper. Beat egg whites stiff. Fold in ground almonds, sugar, cinnamon and lemon rind and drop from a teaspoon onto a greased baking sheet. Bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit, for fifteen minutes. Cool and store in a tightly covered container.

Stratford Sauce.

- ½ cup sour cream
- 2 tablespoons horseradish
- Salt, cayenne

Whip the cream and fold in other ingredients. Serve with cold meats.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

By Roger B. Whitman

SCREENS AND STORM SASH

WHEN insect screens come down in the fall, they are likely to be piled somewhere in attic or cellar without much thought as to putting them into condition for the following year. As a matter of fact, they are well worth caring for, and especially so if they are of copper or bronze netting. One neighbor of mine has worked out a plan that is about the best that I know.

He built his house four years ago, and as part of the construction, every window was fitted with an outside insect screen and with a storm sash. Screens and storm sash fit into the same spaces and are hooked on the same hangers, these being screwed to the upper crosspiece of the window frame. Each window is numbered, and there are identical numbers on the screen and storm sash that fit it.

In his cellar he built a cabinet deep enough to hold the storm sash when slid in edgewise, and of a width that just held the entire set, placed side by side. The screens, of course, fit into the same cabinet. In the spring, the storm sashes come off the windows, and the screens go on in their places. The cabinet, emptied of the screens, is immediately refilled with the storm sashes. With its tight door, the cabinet protects its contents from dust, and there is no danger of breaking a pane of glass, or punching a hole through netting. This arrangement is strongly recommended.

With the end of the insect season, screens should be put into good condition before being stored away. Usually, brushing will be enough, although the frames may need a fresh coat of paint or of varnish.

With copper and bronze screening, there is frequent complaint of the staining of white paint by drip. This is due to the combination of copper salts with the zinc in white paint, and the stain is permanent. There is also a staining with straight lead paint, although this will wash off.

Staining can be prevented by coating the screening with varnish. Varnish cannot be used as it comes in the can, for by its thickness it will fill the meshes. A satisfactory mixture is one-half good spar varnish and one-quarter each linseed oil and turpentine. Before applying, the screening should be scrubbed with soap and water, and traces of the soap rinsed off with clear water. After drying, the screening should then be scrubbed with turpentine.

The easiest and quickest way to apply the varnish is with a piece of carpeting tacked to a block of wood to give the effect of a scrubbing brush. A little of the mixture is applied to the nap of the carpeting, and then rubbed on the screening. The varnish mixture will go on in a thin coat, which will be sufficient to protect the screening from moisture for a full season.

"Turbo-Fusee"

Monsieur Millet of France, the inventor of this vehicle, called it the "Turbo Fusee," but for practical purposes it is still an automobile. The strange road craft is equipped with a five-horsepower motor, which gives it a speed of 180 kilometers an hour. But the motor itself does not directly drive the car; it compresses the air which supplies the actual power. The inventor claims an increase of speed, reduction of fuel consumption and a bigger cruising radius.

Wool Is Going Places

LADY, lady, lady have you anything in wool? Smart women everywhere are clamoring for wool. They're wearing it to work in, to play in, to date in, to go to church in. Yes, wool is going places! Sew-Your-Own is here today (and will be here tomorrow) with three ultra-smooth new models for you to choose from—just to make sure you won't be a poor little lady without "something in wool" for Fall.

Needs Slim Lines.

That "something in wool" might well and easily be the handsome model at the left above. Especially does a weightier fabric need slim lines and here you have them pared down to hairline precision. The zipper from throat to hemline gives this frock additional chic, and the far-reaching collar takes care of that all-important need for contrast. French wine, black, duck green, and gendarme blue are the popular colors.

Compliment to Youth.

Youth and the blouse 'n' skirt have always gone sporting together. That's a compliment to youth and real flattery for the two-piece above, center. This engaging combination has a waist-coatish topper and a simply cut, flaring skirt. A singular asset is its size range: 14 to 42. And because it is figure flattering every size is benefited. Acetate crepe is lovely for the blouse; velvet or thin wool is smart for the skirt.

For a Busy Body.

If you're a busy body or a lady of legion labors, you'll thank Sew-Your-Own for the charming new frock at the right. Now is the time to cut two versions: one in gingham for housework, another as your "something in wool" in the long sleeve style for all occasions. Remember then, double your chances for day-in, day-out chic with this one becoming model and save one-third on time and one-half on the price of your new Fall wardrobe assets.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1375 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 2½ yards of 54-inch material. With short sleeves, 3½ yards of 39-inch material. Collar and cuffs in contrast take five-eighths of a yard.

Pattern 1302 is designed for sizes 4 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material.

Pattern 1382 is designed for sizes 34 to 48. Size 36 requires 2½ yards of 54-inch material with long sleeves; 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with short sleeves.

Lesson for October 24

CHRISTIAN RENEWAL

LESSON TEXT—Titus 3:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men.—Titus 2:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Good Shepherd.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In His Likeness.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A New Life in Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Renewed Life Through Christ.

The pastoral epistles, of which Titus is one, were written by Paul to his young brethren in the faith who had been called to the ministry of the gospel to instruct them concerning three important matters—(1) Church order and organization, (2) sound doctrine and (3) holy living. The third chapter of Titus, our lesson for today, deals with the life of believers in Christ in their relation to unbelievers. The great underlying reason why Christians should conduct themselves in meekness and humility toward others is that except for God's grace we who bear the name of Christ would be, and indeed were before our regeneration, just like the unbeliever.

We shall best study our lesson, therefore, by considering first of all v. 3 which indicates the lost condition of man by nature, then follow him through the miracle of redeeming grace, vv. 4 to 7, and finally see him as a living testimony in vv. 1, 2, and 8 to 11.

I. Lost—by Nature (v. 3).

It is not a pleasant picture that is painted in the graphic words of this verse, but, remember, it is God's picture of the unbeliever. He is said to be "foolish"—that is, irrational and senseless in his course of living. He is "disobedient" to the law of God. He is "deceived," literally "out of the way," misled by Satan. He thinks his pleasures and lusts are serving him, but alas, he is only a slave in bondage to and serving them. Such a life can only result in a man's becoming hateful to his fellowmen. They in turn are hateful to him, and so he hates them. Thus the whole world becomes a hateful place where men are "living in malice and envy."

How we thank God that we need not stop at this point. Man is by nature lost in sin—but he may be

II. Saved—by Grace (vv. 4-7).
How sweet are these three words in the sinner's ears! Saved by grace, not works, and made heirs of eternal life.

1. "Not by works" (v. 5). Someone has said that man is determined by one means or another to claim salvation by his good works. To do so may flatter the flesh, but it surely finds no support whatever in Scripture. We are to work for Christ because we are saved, and after we are saved, but no man can be saved by works.

2. "By his grace" (v. 7). God shows his unspeakable kindness and love toward man—saving him by grace, through Jesus Christ. Grace has well been defined as "unmerited favor." We deserve but the just condemnation of our sin, and God in his mercy saves us, through faith in his Son.

3. "Made heirs" (v. 7). Saved now? Yes, thank God! Satisfied? Yes, praise his name! But there is more yet to come. We who deserve only God's judgment are now made heirs of an eternal hope. 'Tis indeed no small thing to be a child of God.

Now—we are ready to approach in the right spirit the admonition to live out our salvation as a daily testimony to others.

III. Witnessing, by Holy Living (vv. 1, 2, 8-11).

The young preacher Titus is told to "put them in mind" to be

1. Subject to rulers (v. 1). True patriotism (and we did not spell it "pay-triotism") stands very close to godly living. National leaders would do well to recognize that the decay of our national life will follow the decadence of spiritual life. A man who is right with God will be right with his fellowmen, and a noble and useful citizen.

2. Meek and kind to all men (v. 2). Meekness is not weakness. Gentleness is the attribute of strong men and women.

3. Maintaining good, avoiding evil (vv. 8-11). It is the tendency of man to divorce morals from religion, to profess a faith which does not touch his daily life. Let us affirm "constantly" and "confidently" (as the R. V. has it) that those who believe in God should "be careful to maintain good works"—yes, and at the same time to "avoid" that which is "foolish," contentious, "unprofitable and vain."

Knowledge and Ignorance

The best part of our knowledge is that which teaches us where knowledge leaves off and ignorance begins.—O. W. Holmes.

Justice

Justice is the idea of God, the ideal of man, the rule of conduct writ in the nature of mankind.—Theodore Parker.

ILLINOIS BREVITIES

Charles W. Dale, editor of the St. Joseph Record, commemorated his fortieth anniversary as editor of the paper recently.

Roy Wolf, fifty-one, Hoopole farmer, was found hanged in his barn. Relatives said he had been in ill health.

Mrs. Jacob B. Blesser, sixty-four years old, died in Quincy of burns suffered when gasoline exploded, as she was filling a stove.

Allocation of $3,118,500 to Illinois as the federal government's share of old age assistance for October, November, and December was announced by Governor Horner.

Orville R. Sweet, former clerk in the Springfield water, light and power department, was sentenced to an indeterminate term in prison on a charge of embezzling city funds.

One man was killed and another was injured seriously by a fall of rock at the Wallace mine near Marion. The dead man was William Padbreiski of Spillertown. John Ferguson was hurt.

Capt. William W. Austin died at the age of sixty-six. He was a former member of the state board of equalization and postmaster in Effingham for 20 years. He was active in the American Legion.

Frederick M. Trumbull, fifty-nine, Rockford high school employment director, died at St. Anthony hospital from a fractured skull. He was commander of the Sons of Union Veterans.

Henry Schmidt of Moline, seventy-seven years old, veteran First ward alderman and a resident of Moline for 70 years, died of heart disease. He was serving his fourth term in the city council.

State's Attorney S. Donald Crowell of Ogle county expressed the opinion that the ordinance licensing slot machines and pin ball games passed by the Rochelle council is illegal. He questioned the city's right to license any gambling device.

While reading a book entitled, "How a Christian Must Be Prepared to Die," Andrew Bloomquist, eighty-eight years old, died suddenly in the study of his son, Rev. E. C. Bloomquist, pastor of the Emmanuel Lutheran church of Rockford.

Despite a national decline in CCC enrollment, Illinois probably will reach its quota for the last three months of 1937, Carl H. Martini, state director of certification and service for federal agencies, said. Illinois is entitled to send 15,000 youths to CCC camps.

Henry Carver, forty-two years old, and Joseph Collierbrusco, twenty-eight, both of Riverton, were released on bond of $1,500 in Springfield on charges of illegal possession of explosives, while the police investigated their contention that dynamite found in their car was to be used in blasting for fish in the Sangamon river.

Boone county women corn huskers will compete October 21 to select a county champion. The event, said to be the first county contest for women in the state, will be run the same day as the second annual men's husking contest. Farm Adviser E. C. Foley said it was arranged in response to many requests from the women.

John S. Kauffman, ninety-two, last surviving Civil war veteran in Blue Island and an eyewitness to the assassination of Abraham Lincoln in Ford's theater, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hazel Pronger. He helped care for the wounded president and served as a guard during the death vigil. Kauffman had been a resident of Blue Island since 1867.

The Illinois Civilian Rifle association team, with a score of 3,255, won the annual Bliss trophy rifle match on the Camp Logan range. The Illinois National Guard finished second with 3,254. Other teams which competed included Fort Sheridan, Great Lakes marines, reserve officers and American Legion. The event is sponsored by the Illinois Civilian Rifle association.

Students ranging in age from eighteen to seventy and including office boys, clerks, clergymen, executives, carpenters and aviators are enrolled in the University of Illinois' eighty-odd college correspondents courses. Nearly 900 pupils are taking the correspondence work, now in its third year at the university, Prof. Robert B. Brown, director of the extension division, said.

Artificial respiration saved the life of William Wopsandwich, forty-four years old, after he had been in the Mississippi river at Moline. He was floating face down when sighted, and was pulled out at a power dam. Albert A. Adfinger, power company superintendent, said five minutes passed from the time he was seen until he reached the dam. In a half hour he started to show signs of life and was conscious in two hours.

Members of the newly organized Illinois Justices, Police Magistrates and Constables' association, successor to one of similar name and like aims, that existed several years ago, held their first meeting in the Cicero town hall.

Miss Barbara Lasher, first woman member of the Elgin city council, was married at Madison, Wis., to Erlend Lannerud, a Chicago chemist. Miss Lasher was appointed commissioner of parks and public property a year and a half ago to complete the unexpired term of her late father, Frank M. Lasher.

Laws Are a Retreat

It isn't laws that Americans need to enable them to get along together, but a decent regard for each other.

One way to learn patriotism toward your country is to have to live in a foreign land.

Reason why people forgive is because they do forget.

Overeating is what shortens a pig's life, too.

87 SPEED RECORDS BROKEN TO MAKE TIRES SAFER FOR YOU

Never Before Have Tires Been Put to Such Gruelling
Torture

AT SPEEDS as high as 180 miles an hour—with the hot, coarse, abrasive salt grinding, tearing, scorching his tires—Ab Jenkins' special racer, weighing nearly three tons, pounded over the Bonneville Salt Beds at such terrific speed that it caused the surface to break up. Before the end of the run the track was so pitted and rough that it was almost impossible to hold the car on its course. Yet Jenkins set 87 new World, International and American speed records on Firestone Tires.

Building tires capable of establishing such records is made possible by patented Firestone manufacturing processes. These exclusive features enable Firestone to provide car owners with extra safe tires.

For the greatest protection equip your car with Firestone TRIPLE-SAFE Tires. By TRIPLE-SAFE we mean—

- 1 PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING
—The scientific tread design stops your car up to 25% quicker.
- 2 PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS
—The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process counteracts internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.
- 3 PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES
—Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread give extra protection against punctures.

Make your car tire-safe for fall and winter driving. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by letting your Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store equip your car with a set of new FIRESTONE TRIPLE-SAFE Tires—the safest tires that money can buy!

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO DRIVE WITHOUT FIRESTONE TRIPLE-SAFE TIRES

Last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children and a million more were injured! More than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires!

Left is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, with non-skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

Left is a section cut from a Firestone Triple-Safe tire. Note the thick, non-skid protection against blowouts and punctures. Come in and see a demonstration.

DESPERATE AMBROSE

is doing some deep thinking and trouble clouds loom thick on the horizon. Ambrose is just one of the characters in that humorous and delightful comic strip

S'Matter Pop

If you haven't been introduced to Desperate Ambrose, Old Timer, Willie and Pop Wimpus you've been missing a lot of good, clean American humor. C. M. Payne has found the real underlying humor in home life and brings it to you in this favorite of comic strip readers everywhere.

"S'Matter Pop" Is a Regular Feature of This Paper Watch for It in Each Issue

Like All Women, You Want Your Clothes to Be Right

AND the only way that you can be sure they will be right is to know what the designers and creators of new styles have decreed shall be right.

Cherie Nicholas, nationally known authority, who writes on women's fashions for this paper, tells you just what you want to know and pictures for you the garments and hats that the well-dressed woman will be wearing in the weeks to come. The styles that Miss Nicholas describes are authentic and the garments that she depicts are up-to-the-minute, but they do not represent style extremes. The garments are those that will be worn by the average woman and that you will find for sale in your home stores.

Keep up with the changing styles through Miss Nicholas' illustrated fashion articles, appearing in these columns, and tell your friends about them.
